

On Second Mesa

The setting sun silhouettes the rain moving up the painted valley between here and Old Oraibi

A potsherd

Black on white

Put it back

A patch of stones

Full of holes

Leave them

The soft sands of Second Mesa
White clay under rumbling rock

The snakes have gone from our mouths

Under the cedar under the sky
Wherever one steps is sacred