

(2024 August 10) Making an Earthly Paradise - William Morris -Birch (TLS)

<https://www.the-tls.co.uk/literature-by-region/british-literature/william-morris-ingrid-hanson-marcus-waithe/>

"His tirelessly resourceful series of experiments was driven by his rejection of modern civilization. He wanted to renew the creative practices of the past to create a different future, and what is now remembered from his diverse pursuits largely depends on who is doing the remembering."

- Dinah Birch

Morris, a remarkable human being by almost any standard, is a longtime favorite of mine, as he was for Yeats, Shaw, Pound, Kenneth Burke, E.P. Thompson and many others. Here is a link to a piece on Morris in my Pound Laundry (Red Dragonfly Press, 2020).

<https://michaelgregoryaz.net/pound-laundry/>

For those of you who have the book, it begins on p. 79.

- MG