

Reproducing the world as perceived of only rudimentary interest like contemplation or computation of it tending toward a state of equilibrium among its atomized individuals maintaining the status quo imbalance — diminishing returns in facing mirrors — when the point is to change it turn the circular logic of mother tongues against itself bust through the abstract generalities depleted concepts subordinative laws of relations that keep the mind within a literacy endlessly imitating itself in lines laid down by yesterday's schoolbook grammars dismissing things as they are now — world of absolute sound, time-machines made of compacted time an intelligible ideal indifferent as bombs to listeners unidentified flying subjects about to be what they will be coupled or decoupled at will author and auditor joined at the lip.