

Open Season

No sunrise to speak of the rain a whisper overhead guns going off out there somewhere birds falling out of the sky animals down on their knees the intelligence of their eyes all those broken promises at each others' throats a dog somewhere out in the brush barking at something no one can see